Sentinel Privacy Policy

Oct 23, 2026 · @Ace

Effective date: October 23, 2026

This Privacy Policy explains what information Sentinel collects, why it collects it, who it is shared with, and what you can ask us to do with it.

Sentinel is operated by Cole Slay, a sole proprietor with a business address at 13565 Howling Coyote Ave, Las Vegas, Nevada. For the purposes of UK and EU data protection law, Cole Slay is the data controller for the information described below. Questions and privacy requests go to coleslaysolutions@gmail.com.

1. Scope

This policy covers the Sentinel website and web application. It applies to visitors, to people who create an account, and to people who submit a web address for scanning.

It does not cover the websites you scan. When Sentinel visits a site you submit, that site's operator decides what it logs and how it handles the visit. It also does not cover third-party websites we link to.

2. Information we collect

Account information. If you create an account we collect your email address and the identifiers our sign-in provider generates for you. If you sign in through a third-party provider such as Google, we receive the email address and basic profile identifier that provider returns. We never receive or store your password for that provider.

Web addresses you submit. When you request a scan we store the address you submitted and the origin it resolved to. A web address can itself be personal information, for instance when it contains your name.

Scan results. We store the report a scan produces: the grade, the findings, the short evidence excerpts taken from your public page, the list of checks that ran, and the time of the scan.

Companion messages. If you ask the companion a question, we process the text of your message together with the report it refers to in order to answer it.

Technical and log data. Our servers record the IP address a request came from, the time, the endpoint, the response status, basic request headers including the user agent, and error details. This is what lets us apply rate limits, diagnose faults, and detect abuse.

Usage counts. We record counts such as scans run and companion messages sent, tied to an account or a connection, so that usage limits can be applied.

Subscription and billing information. If you buy a paid plan, your payment details are collected by the payment service you choose. We accept Stripe, PayPal and Apple Pay for automatically renewing subscriptions, and Zelle, Cash App, Chime and Venmo for manual payments. We never receive or store your full card number. From Stripe, PayPal or Apple Pay we receive a customer identifier, your billing email address, the plan you bought, your subscription status and renewal date, the country and postal code used for tax, and the last four digits and card type of your payment method. When you pay through Zelle, Cash App, Chime or Venmo, we see the name, handle or phone number that service shows to the recipient of a payment, along with the amount, the date and any note you add.

3. What we do not collect, and what is redacted

Sentinel's scanner is deliberately narrow. It does not sign in to the site you submit, submit forms, guess hidden paths, run the page's JavaScript, or download source maps. It therefore does not reach data held behind your application's own login.

Two things are redacted before anything is stored or shown:

- Suspected secrets. When a scan finds a string that looks like an API key or token in your public code, the report records only its first four characters and its total length, never the full value.
- Cookie values. Sentinel inspects the security attributes of the cookies your site sets. It does not read or store cookie values.

We never receive your full payment card number: our payment processor handles card details directly, as described above. We do not ask for, and you should not send us, government identification numbers, health information, or other sensitive categories of personal information.

4. How we use information

We use the information described above to:

- run the scan you requested and return its report;

- produce plain-language explanations and suggested fixes;
- show you your earlier reports and your score over time, where your account supports that;
- apply rate limits and usage limits, and keep the Service available;
- detect, investigate and prevent abuse, including unauthorized scanning;
- respond to you, and to site operators who contact us about a scan;
- diagnose faults and improve the checks the scanner runs;
- comply with law and enforce the Terms of Service.

We do not use your scan reports or your companion messages to train our own models, and we do not sell personal information. How our model provider handles what we send it is described in Section 6.

5. Legal bases, for people in the UK and the EEA

Where UK or EU data protection law applies, we rely on these legal bases:

- Performance of a contract, to run the scan you asked for, return its report, and operate your account.
- Legitimate interests, for security, abuse prevention, rate limiting, fault diagnosis, and improving the checks. We have weighed these against your interests and consider them proportionate, because the data involved is limited and is not used to profile you.
- Legal obligation, where we are required to keep or disclose information.
- Consent, where we ask for it specifically, for example for optional messages. You can withdraw consent at any time.

6. AI processing and Google Gemini

To explain a finding or answer a question, we send the following to Google's Gemini API:

- the text of your message to the companion;
- the relevant findings from your report, including the short evidence excerpts and the redacted secret indicators described in Section 3;
- the web address that was scanned.

We do not send your account email address, your credentials, or our server logs.

Google processes this as our service provider in order to return a response, under Google's terms for the Gemini API. Please do not type anything into the companion that you would not want sent to a third-party processor.

7. Service providers and third parties

We rely on a small number of providers.

Provider	What it does	What it handles
Google Cloud	Hosts the website and the scanner service	Requests, IP addresses, server logs
Google Firebase	Sign-in and application data storage	Email address, account identifiers, saved reports
Google Gemini API	Produces explanations and companion answers	Scan findings, the scanned address, companion messages
Stripe	Takes card and wallet payments, manages subscriptions	Card details, billing email and address, transaction and subscription history
PayPal, Apple Pay	Take payments and manage subscriptions	Billing identifiers, transaction and subscription history
Zelle, Cash App, Chime, Venmo	Receive manual payments	The name, handle or phone number shown on a payment, the amount, the date and any note

Each acts as our processor or service provider on our instructions rather than as an independent controller of your information, and each is bound by its own agreement with us. If we add or change a provider, this table is updated.

We may also disclose information where the law requires it, where it is necessary to investigate abuse or protect the rights and safety of others, or in connection with a sale or transfer of the business, in which case we will tell you.

8. We do not sell your information

We do not sell personal information, and we do not share it for cross-context behavioral advertising or targeted advertising. We have not done either in the twelve months before the effective date of this policy.

Nevada residents have a statutory right to direct an operator not to sell their covered information. We do not sell it, but if you would like to submit a request anyway, email coleslaysolutions@gmail.com with the subject line "Nevada opt-out".

9. How long we keep information

Information	How long we keep it
Account record, including email address	While your account is open. After a deletion request: 15 days in which you can change your mind, then permanent deletion, with backup copies cleared within 45 days
Scan reports and submitted addresses	12 months from the scan, or until you delete them
Companion messages	12 months, or until you delete the report they relate to
Server access logs	90 days
Security, abuse and error logs	12 months
Aggregate usage counts that do not identify you	Kept indefinitely
Billing and transaction records	As long as tax and accounting law requires, generally 7 years, even after you delete your account

We may hold information for longer where we need it to resolve a dispute, investigate abuse, or meet a legal obligation. Backups may persist for a short period after deletion.

10. Security

We use measures appropriate to a service of this size: encryption in transit, access controls on the systems holding your data, API keys held server-side rather than in your browser, redaction of suspected secrets and cookie values before storage, and rate limiting to contain abuse.

No service can promise perfect security, and we do not. If a breach affects your personal information and the law requires us to notify you, we will do so without undue delay, using the email address on your account.

11. Your rights

Whoever and wherever you are, you can ask us to:

- tell you what information we hold about you, and give you a copy of it;
- correct information that is wrong;
- delete your account and the data associated with it;
- stop sending you optional messages.

Email coleslaysolutions@gmail.com to make a request. We aim to respond within 30 days, and where a request is complex and the law allows longer, we will tell you. We may need to verify your identity first, usually by confirming that you control the email address on the account. Exercising a right costs you nothing and will not lead to worse treatment.

How deletion works. Deletion is not instant, because we build in a window in case you change your mind.

1. You ask us to delete your account.
2. For the next 15 days the request can be reversed. Email us within that window and we will stop it.
3. After 15 days we delete your account and the data tied to it from our live systems.
4. Copies held in backups are cleared within 45 days of that deletion.

After that the deletion is permanent, and we cannot recover your account, your reports or your score history. Export anything you want to keep before you ask. Two things survive: billing and transaction records that tax and accounting law requires us to keep, and security or abuse records where we need them to protect the Service or to meet a legal obligation. Both are kept to the minimum needed, and neither is used to rebuild your account.

UK and EEA. You also have the right to restrict or object to processing, the right to data portability, the right to withdraw consent, and the right to complain to your supervisory authority. In the UK that is the Information Commissioner's Office.

California. You have the right to know, to delete, to correct, to opt out of sale or sharing, which we do not do, and not to be discriminated against for exercising a right. We do not use or disclose sensitive personal information for any purpose that would give you a right to limit that use.

Nevada. See Section 8.

12. Children

The Service is for adults. You must be at least 18 to use it, and we do not knowingly collect personal information from anyone under 18. If you believe a child has given us personal information, email coleslaysolutions@gmail.com and we will delete it.

13. International data transfers

We operate from the United States, and our providers process data in the United States and in other countries where they run infrastructure. If you use the Service from outside the United States, your information is transferred to and processed in the United States, where data protection law differs from the law where you live.

Where UK or EU law applies to a transfer, we rely on the UK International Data Transfer Addendum or the European Commission's Standard Contractual Clauses as incorporated into our providers' terms. Ask us at coleslaysolutions@gmail.com if you would like details.

14. Cookies and local storage

We use only what the Service needs in order to work:

- a session cookie or token, set by our sign-in provider, that keeps you signed in;
- browser local storage for small preferences, such as a remembered view or an unsent draft.

We do not use advertising cookies, and we do not allow third-party advertising or tracking networks on the Service. Blocking or clearing these will sign you out and reset your preferences, but it will not otherwise stop the Service working.

15. Changes to this policy

We may update this policy. The effective date at the top shows when the current version took effect. If a change materially affects how we handle your personal information, we will give notice before it takes effect, by posting on the Service and, where we hold your email address, by email.

16. Contact and privacy requests
